RUSSIA MAY SLIGHT U. S.

LONDON, April 29. (U. S. Press.) Russian officials here have given the government to not give a very sympathetic reception to the invitation to participate in the Lansing-Paoli expedition, and that any plan of action with regard to the former party question has something to do with this attitude. It is said that a communication awaits the expedition's departure from St. Petersburg, which will be an official declaration.

Children's Kidneys

No Colorado Springs Mother Should Neglect the Little One's Health

Fifty times weak kidneys cause all annoyance and embarrassment to children. Inability to control the kidneys' secretions at night or while at play is attributed to weak kidneys. Frequent "troubles" of the child are caused by weak kidneys. Children troubled with kidney weakness would do well to treat the kidneys with a tested and proven kidney remedy. If there is pain in the back, discolored urine, irregular urination, headaches, dizzy spells or a tired, worn-out feeling, begin giving Doan's Kidney Pills at once. This remedy has been used in kidney troubles for over 25 years; it has cured and has been recommended by thousands. Proof is in the fact that it strikes at the root of the trouble.

It is Dr. J. C. Doan, proprietor of Doan's Kidney Pills, who says: "Since our seven-year-old boy was a baby, he has been a great sufferer from kidney and bladder trouble until a few months ago, when we gave him Doan's Kidney Pills, obtained from the Putcher Drug Co. Their use brought prompt relief and I am glad to endorse them." For sale by all dealers. Price 40 cents. Putcher-Doan Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and you are not misled.

CLASS HATRED

TAFT'S CHARGE NONSENSE

Giving Warning That Policy of Flabby Indecision Will Cause Trouble

PITTSFIELD, Mass., April 29.—"If you vote for Mr. Taft you vote for these men," said Colonel Roosevelt here tonight after referring to Senators Lorimer, Penrose, Gallinger and Guggenheim.

He said that the president had practically nothing in his campaign back of him outside of two or three states except the support received from those men, and their like and from the great sinister special interests which stand behind these bosses.

Colonel Roosevelt devoted a large part of his speech to a reply to the things President Taft had been saying during the day, at the other end of the state. At intervals on his journey across the state the colonel received telegraphic reports of the president's speeches and in the latter part of the day he entered upon a long-drawn-out debate by referring to Mr. Taft's statements.

Not Stirring Up Class Hatred.

Colonel Roosevelt said the president had asserted that he was stirring up class hatred. This Colonel Roosevelt denied.

The talk that I am stirring up class hatred is nonsense, he declared. In this connection he said: "If Mr. Taft's policy of flabby indecision and of hesitating a moment in the morning of the crooked boss and the crooked financier is permitted to continue there will really grow up class hatred in this country. There will grow up a very uncomfortable and very ugly feeling of discontent with political, social and industrial conditions."

Colonel Roosevelt made it clear that he did not believe the result of his long talk, held up in the outcome of the morning's primaries.

Mind you, he said, I believe we can win this fight with our masses.

But I don't want Massachusetts to lag behind. I want it to be in the lead in the fight.

In speaking here tonight the colonel said:

Mr. Taft in his speech today has announced that I am trying to stir up class hatred and excite discontent. I ask you to look for yourselves at my speech last Saturday night in Boston, the longest speech I made in Massachusetts and the speech in which I developed in detail certain of the ideas of my Columbus speech for what I have been most criticized. I ask you to look for yourselves at my speech in New York last night, in which I said that I am not stirring up class hatred, but I am stirring up class consciousness. I ask you to look for yourselves at my speech in New York last night, in which I said that I am not stirring up class hatred, but I am stirring up class consciousness.

Wants to Stop Misgovernment

Colonel Roosevelt said that he was not stirring up class hatred, but he was stirring up class consciousness. He said that he was not stirring up class hatred, but he was stirring up class consciousness.

ENGINEERS WON'T ACCEPT PROPOSED ARBITRATOR

NEW YORK, April 29.—After a session lasting till midnight, the conference committee of managers of eastern railroads gave out a statement declaring they had proposed that the interstate commerce commission act as arbitrator of the engineers' demands, but that the proposition had been declined by the interstate commerce commission, and that Chief Stone of

(Continued From Page One) Mr. Taft trying to lead the other," said Dockery, "there is hope for Clark or any other good Democrat. For a long time I have wondered whether I would like to look in the face of a Democratic president again—or a Democratic postmaster (Without insinuating, it may be stated that Mr. Dockery is gray-haired and about 60 years old.)

THE BROTHERHOOD OF LOCOMOTIVE ENGINEERS HAD REFUSED TO ACCEPT THE INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION AS ARBITRATOR

As an alternative the committee submitted to the government mediators, a proposition for a committee of seven one each to represent the railroads and the engineers and these two select five umpires. In event these representatives fail to agree on the five umpires it is proposed that they be appointed by the chief justice of the United States.

Ten minutes after the early addition of his paper, the Times appeared in the convention. In a few moments all except the Progressives were behind the times. Literally and figuratively.

CONSTIPATED? Go To Your Doctor

It is impossible to be well, simply impossible, if the bowels are constipated. What? product, no, is not a medicine, but a natural food for the body at least once each day, or there will be no health. Ask your doctor about Ayer's Pills, gently laxative, all vegetable. He knows why they act directly on the liver.

ALVA ADAMS READ THE REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON RESOLUTIONS, WHICH ENDORSED THE ADMINISTRATION OF PRESIDENT TAFT.

The speaker said that the longer the regulation stop for a period, but, although it was a fine opening for deafening applause, there was enough silence to drop a pin. The convention was not partial to the state administration—so 'tis said.

WOMEN SHOULD BE PROTECTED

Against So Many Surgical Operations. How Mrs. Bethune and Mrs. Moore Escaped.

Sikeston, Mo.—"For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I cramped and had backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do my own housework, hoe my garden, and milk a cow. I can entertain company and enjoy them. I can visit when I choose, and walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the month. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl."—Mrs. DEMA BETHUNE, Sikeston, Mo.

Murrayville, Ill.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a very bad case of female trouble and it made me a well woman. My health was all broken down, the doctors said I must have an operation, and I was ready to go to the hospital, but I decided that I would try your Compound. I got along so well that I gave up the doctors and was saved from the operation."—Mrs. CHARLES MOORE, R. R. No. 2, Murrayville, Ill.

RECORD IS BROKEN AT TELEPHONE EXCHANGE

Yesterday was a record-breaking day for the long distance operators of the local telephone exchange, the number of calls they handled by far exceeding that registered on any previous date. There were 451 outgoing calls transmitted from 4 a. m. to 9 p. m., and 561 incoming calls charged, which does not include calls sent here which were charged at the other end of the lines. The largest day's business heretofore was on the date of the Republican state convention, when about 400 outgoing calls were handled.

MANITOU HOST TO P. P. REGION

HOT IRON CLUB ENTERTAINS AT BANQUET

Two Governors Guests of Honor Many Rousing Addresses Given

Hospitable Manitou was host last night to the commercial and business interests of the Pikes Peak region. The occasion was the first annual dinner of the Manitou Springs Hot Iron club. More than 150 business and professional men of Manitou, Colorado City and Colorado Springs mingled together in good fellowship and participated in one of the most successful gatherings of this nature ever held in the entire district.

Growing out of the meeting was a broader spirit of cooperation and a general desire to bring the three sections of the community at the foot of Pikes Peak into closer harmony—the spirit which has been typical of the Manitou Springs Hot Iron club, through which the brains and the energy of Manitou have been directed for the last six months toward the realization of big plans for the development of a greater Pikes Peak region.

With Governor John F. Shafroth and former Governor C. S. Thomas as the guests of honor, it was a notable gathering.

When Mayor William Lennon of Manitou, after the delightful menu had been served, called the meeting to order, the big dining room in the Cliff house was filled with representatives of the Manitou Springs Hot Iron club, and their guests, the members of the Colorado City Business Men's association, the Colorado City chamber of commerce, and the Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce. President W. R. Kirby of the Hot Iron club, in a few well chosen words, extended the welcome of Manitou, and as toastmaster introduced as the first speaker of the evening, former Governor Thomas, who spoke on "See America First."

Governor Thomas Talks. "The man who fails to see all of his own country first fails in one of the first obligations of true citizenship," he said. He recalled early incidents in the history of Manitou and spoke of the wonderful advancement of the state and of the profound changes which have come about in travel.

State Auditor M. A. Leddy told of his experiences of 32 years in Manitou, and paid tribute to Z. G. Simmons, Mayor Humbert, E. E. Nichols and other public spirited men who have had a prominent part in the building of Manitou.

George F. Geiker, secretary of the Colorado City chamber of commerce, on behalf of that city, pledged cooperation and declared that the feeling between the three cities is coming more and more to work toward one end—a greater Pikes Peak region.

Mayor H. F. Avery of Colorado Springs congratulated Manitou upon the improvements which it has made within the last few years, spoke of the beneficial effects last year of the "Pikes Peak Region day" and urged a further observance of the day this spring.

W. H. Spurgeon, vice president of the Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce, bespoke the desire of that organization to work in harmony and cooperation with Manitou and Colorado City for the general advancement of the region. He said: "This region is in competition with the best resorts of the world. We must see to it that the Pikes Peak region is made the most attractive." He laid particular stress on the necessity of a pure water supply, and urged that the logical step is to place the water supply for the entire region under one management.

Governor Shafroth's Address.

Governor Shafroth, responding to the toast, "Greater Colorado," told of the wonderful and diversified resources of the Centennial state. He spoke of the possibilities of the development of its tourist business, comparing Colorado to Switzerland, which realizes every year $100,000,000 from its tourist travel. He reviewed the mining history of the state, and presented facts to show of its wonderful undeveloped resources in other fields, agriculture and water power. He made a vigorous protest against the present system of conservation of the resources of the west, and declared that proposed legislation providing for the leasing of the resources of the western states is an injustice; that it would deprive the states of millions of dollars in taxes and would irreparably retard the development of the west.

Leonard E. Curtis, president of the Lincoln Highway association and the Colorado Springs Automobile club, told of the increased growth of interest in the automobile and how it has pointed out that Colorado is the natural playground of the rich agricultural states of the southwest. He predicted that if Colorado does its part in building good roads, there will come to this state at least 100,000 automobiles every year, and that many of these parties would become permanent residents or investors. He urged a county bond issue for the building of roads and advocated the adoption of the proposed amendment providing for a state bond issue of $10,000,000.

In every detail, arrangements for the affair were carefully planned and carried out, and a great deal of credit for its success is due to the officers of the club and the committee on arrangements, C. A. Pollen, C. H. Austin, E. E. Nichols and R. E. L. Giles.

"Clean Up the Bowels and Keep Them Clean"

There are many remedies to be had for constipation, but the difficulty is to procure one that acts without violence. A remedy that does not perform by force, which would be accomplished by persuasion is Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets. After using them, Mr. N. A. Waddell, 315 Washington St., Waco, Tex., says: "Almost all my life I have been troubled with constipation, and have tried many remedies, all of which seemed to cause pain without giving much relief. I finally tried Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets and found them excellent. Their action is pleasant and mild, and their chocolate taste makes them easy to take. I am more than glad to recommend them."

"Clean up the bowels and keep them clean," is the advice of all physicians, because they realize the danger resulting from habitual constipation. Do not delay too long, but begin proper curative measures.

Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets are a new remedy for this old complaint, and a great improvement over the cathartics you have been using in the past. They taste like candy and work like a charm. A trial will convince you. Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets are sold by all druggists, at 25 cents a box containing 35 doses. If not found satisfactory after trial, return the box to your druggist and he will return your money. A. J. WILSON MEDICAL CO., CHICAGO, ILL.

Sweethearts in Youth in Austria Will Wed in This City Sunday

A romance that the leading man feared was to develop into a tragedy, was brought to light yesterday when Nick Miller Ivancevich, an Austrian living in Colorado City, applied for a marriage license permitting him to wed Mary Spadiger.

For two weeks Ivancevich lived in an agony of fear and anxiety regarding the safety of his boyhood sweetheart, whom he expected would arrive in Colorado about April 15. Victims of shipwreck and accidents of every sort haunted him because of the Titanic disaster which were only dispelled when Miss Spadiger, a handsome girl of 20, reached here Saturday. She had sailed on the Niagara, which was nearly two weeks overdue when it arrived in New York. Ivancevich and Miss Spadiger were youthful sweethearts in Budva, province of Cottaro, Austria. He came to America about two years ago. Now they are to be married Sunday at 522 Zurich street, Colorado City.

LAMP CAUSES FIRE

The explosion of a coal oil lamp in the photograph gallery of Lloyd Enos on South Fourth street, caused a fire at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. The damage is estimated at $800. Mr. and Mrs. Enos, who were sleeping in the house, were awakened by the smoke and quickly turned in an alarm. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

SOME OURAY COUNTY DELEGATES AND THEIR MASCOT.

HOW BLOOD IS MADE.

The liquids and the digested foods in the alimentary canal pass through the wall of the canal into the blood. This process is called absorption and takes place chiefly from the small intestine. After absorption the blood carries the food through the body, and each cell takes from the blood the food it needs. A pure glyceric extract made from bloodroot, mandrake, stone, queen's root and golden seal and sold by druggists for the past forty years under the name of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, gives uniformly excellent results as a tonic to help in the assimilation of the food and in the absorption by the blood of the food it requires. Eradicate the poisons from the blood with this alternative extract which does not shrink the white blood corpuscles, because containing no alcohol or other injurious ingredients. Thus the body can be built up—strong to resist disease. This is a tonic taken from Nature's garden that builds up those weakened by disease. Dr. Pierce, founder of the Invalids' Hotel at Buffalo, N. Y., has received many letters similar to the following:

Mr. FRANK R. MUNRO, of Paradise, N. S. writes: "I take great pleasure in writing you as regards my case and its cure. In September I was seized with Typhoid Fever, which put me in a dreadful condition. I was weak, run down, nervous and was reduced to a mere skeleton. I had tried most everything I could get but nothing did me any good until, at last, I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and 'Pleasant Pellets,' which I did. Before I had used one bottle I saw a great improvement and when I had used this treatment two months, using only a few vials of 'Pleasant Pellets,' I returned to perfect health. I cannot find words to express my thankfulness for this wonderful medicine. I advise all sufferers to write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, as he cures when others fail."

TO ANNEX COLORADO CITY

JUST why an imaginary line should be drawn through a community which is one in fact, dividing it into two distinct municipalities, is a question which has inspired wonderment in nearly everybody both residents and visitors in this community. Passengers on the west-bound cars travel for several miles through a thickly built-up section before reaching Manitou. After a while they learn that they are no longer in Colorado Springs, but in Colorado City, and naturally they wonder why. They had passed through no open, unsettled stretch of intervening territory. To all appearances they had been in one city throughout the journey, but they learned that an imaginary line drawn in the middle of a certain street separates Colorado Springs on the east from Colorado City on the west. The distinction impresses them as artificial and ridiculous, and such it is in fact.

At a meeting yesterday between the directors of the Chamber of Commerce and a committee of representative citizens of Colorado City this absurdity was discussed at length. The outcome was the passage of a resolution by the directors requesting the Council to appoint three members of a commission of six, the other three to be appointed by the Colorado City Council, to investigate the problem of annexing Colorado City to Colorado Springs. Another resolution, also adopted unanimously, provides for a similar commission to consider the annexation to Colorado Springs of Roswell and Ivywild. Already a good many Roswell people have expressed a desire that their suburb be included within the corporate limits of Colorado Springs, and there are important reasons for making Ivywild also a part of this city.

This movement, considered either in its ECONOMY AND RELATION TO COLORADO CITY, appears at first glance to be based on sound common-sense. The present boundaries are purely artificial. Just why an individual who lives fifty feet west of an imaginary line should be called upon to help support a separate city government when his neighbor across the street is supporting another city government, is a question which cannot be satisfactorily answered. The whole system is wasteful and extravagant. It involves the maintenance of two complete city governments, with two sets of officials, where one would suffice. It imposes a wholly unnecessary burden of taxation. Colorado Springs and Colorado City are one community in fact, but they are kept apart by a legal distinction which serves no good purpose whatever.

The plan of the proposed annexation ought to be adjusted without special difficulty. Of course there are terms to be agreed upon, legal formalities to be complied with. Opposition may, and doubtless will, arise in each city, but it is safe to say that it will be based wholly on private interests, but in the long run such opposition will not weigh heavily against the common welfare of both communities.

The census of 1910 showed that the population of Colorado Springs proper was, at that time, a little more than 29,000. Making reasonable allowance for the growth of the entire region since then, it is safe to say that the population of the greater Colorado Springs which would be created by the annexation of Colorado City, Roswell and Ivywild is now not less than 38,000, and it might considerably exceed this figure. But after all it is not a question of numbers so much as it is one of uniting all of the people who live in this community into a homogeneous body, under one government, with the resultant benefits which can reasonably be expected.

CIVIC BEAUTY

LAST year the Civic League appointed a "Hollyhock Day" on which a limited quantity of seeds and plants were given free to people who agreed to plant them in backyards and along alley fences. The object, of course, was to improve the appearance of neglected premises in the residential parts will carry out a similar idea, a "May-day Plant Exchange" at 8 East Pike's Peak Avenue, from 9:30 a. m. to 5:00 p. m. Ornamental plants of various kinds will be distributed without charge to whoever will agree to plant and care for them.

The practical value of such methods as this in improving the appearance of a city is by no means inconsiderable. Everybody would rather have his home attractive than unsightly, but there are many who have permitted their premises to "run down at the heels" merely from want of the right incentive. A general movement such as a "clean-up day" or a "flower-planting day," meets with a ready response, and although its effect may not be immediately perceptible, it is undoubtedly beneficial in the long run. Every well-kept lawn is an example to all of the people in the neighborhood and to every passerby; and if the present effort of the Civic League induces no more than one hundred people to plant vines and flowers it will be well worth while, for the example of these people will be followed next year by many others.

Civic beauty is a subject which cannot be too strongly emphasized in Colorado Springs, for in a peculiar sense it is the basis of our welfare. The city has grown to its present size almost solely because of its charms as a residential place. The healthful scenic environment is responsible for the presence here of nine-tenths of the population. And since the business of catering to the wants of visitors is the chief source of income it is important that no opportunity be overlooked to enhance the city's attractiveness in any way. The public improvements now under construction—street paving, parking, the installation of an ornamental street-lighting system—will add more to the appearance of the business section than anything that has yet been done.

But whatever may be done by the municipality, now or in the future, Colorado Springs cannot be a City Beautiful in the fullest sense without the earnest co-operation of the citizens as individuals. No matter how much the city may spend in parking and otherwise improving a street, it cannot be made truly beautiful as long as the people who live on it neglect their lawns and fences, their back-yards and out-buildings. It may not actually be possible to "make all alleys look like walks in a garden," but it is possible, indeed, it is cheap and easy to correct their usual ugliness and make them reasonably presentable. They can be kept clean with very little trouble or expense, and their deadly monotony can be relieved by planting vines and hardy flowers to hide fences and out-buildings. Such effort pays big dividends both to the individual and the community.

WHY?
From The Kansas City Star.
Why have the Taft managers postponed the Ohio primaries to the last week of May? Ohio is the president's home state. Naturally it would be expected to get in early with its endorsement.
There was no such delay four years ago when Mr. Taft was the candidate. There was none in 1896 when McKinley was running.
Why doesn't the president wish to hear from Ohio?

LAW AND RUBEN OGLESBY.
From The Philadelphia North American.
"Our aim," says Theodore Roosevelt, "is to secure social justice through genuine rule of the people."
Somewhat vague, is it? Well, there is nothing vague about the story of Ruben Oglesby, which perfectly illustrates the cause as stated.

Ruben Oglesby, a vigorous, hardy young man, was a brakeman on the Missouri Pacific railroad. One day his train was smashed up in a wreck, due to rotten construction in a box car. Ruben Oglesby was smashed up, too, crippled for life. He could never turn a brake wheel or couple cars again, or earn another dollar by manual labor.
He sued the railroad and got $15,000—that is, a verdict for $15,000. The law put its protecting arm around Ruben Oglesby and said: "This young man, through no fault of his own, in the performance of his duty, has been made a cripple. The railroad which crippled him shall pay him for his lost years of usefulness. This is fair. And it is legal."
But the money wasn't paid yet. The railroad appealed, carried the case to the Missouri supreme court—where the judgment was affirmed by six judges out of the seven. Still no payment.
The railroad attorneys offered to pay $15,000 and sell a rehearing, and for the third time the law said: "Pay Ruben Oglesby his money." Again the railroad attorneys pleaded, the case was reopened, and for the fourth time—the third time in the supreme court—the law said: "Pay Ruben Oglesby for his crippled body, his crippled life."
These lawyers tell us frequently that the decisions of a court are sacred; that to question them is to violate the sanctity of the temple of justice. But in this case three supreme court decisions in a row were not sacred. The railroad attorneys went into another county and had the case reopened. A different judge and different jurors heard the testimony, and they too gave judgment for Ruben Oglesby. For the fifth time justice triumphed.
And the railroad appealed to the supreme court. What, again? Assuredly. You see, more than 14 years had passed since Ruben Oglesby had been smashed up, the personnel of the supreme court had changed, and there was a chance that new conceptions of law—

That was it. The new judges on the supreme court bench smashed the sacred decision of their predecessors just about as badly as Ruben Oglesby had been smashed. They said to the railroad, "You needn't pay him a dollar for crippling him. And, to clinch the sanctity of this decision, they refused Ruben Oglesby a new trial. Five times the railroad had the case won by Ruben Oglesby, reopened. He couldn't get it reopened once. The final decision was handed down on June 18, 1908, nearly 11 years after the man had been crippled.
The public, of course, could not recall the decision. But they recalled Ruben Oglesby, for they elected him railroad commissioner of Missouri, and his associates made him chairman.
Now this case of Ruben Oglesby is precisely the kind of case which distinguished corporation lawyers have in mind when they tell us sternly that a legal decision is sacred, and that for the people to have anything whatever to say upon such a matter is "to stir up insurrection" and "bring the root of the tree of freedom."

kind of case Theodore Roosevelt has in mind when he says that when courts annul acts passed by the legislature upon public demand, the people shall have the right to decide which has interpreted correctly the public will, the legislature or the courts.

Men everywhere seem to think their vote is a thing with which to "get even" with those who have in many remote ways incurred their displeasure.

It will finally be unconstitutional for any man not a lawyer to be a member of congress. Lawyers stand together better than any other class of men.

The old phrenologists used to say a good deal about the bump of imagination. I have it, but it has fooled me so often that I am becoming more conservative.

We speak of new evils, whereas evils are almost without exception, old. But many remedies for old evils are new, and modern men deserve the credit.

As a general rule, the man who behaves himself doesn't do much howling because he doesn't get justice.

Every man flatters himself that he will finally whip his enemy, and that he will give him a good one when he gets at him.

A country doctor is celebrated who was called to see a man very ill with an unknown disease, whereupon the doctor tried to throw his patient into fits, a complaint he claimed to understand. The people today are trying to throw business into politics, although we know from long experience that politics is epilepsy, and incurable.

Sassafras Tea

By WALT MASON.

This is the season of sassafras tea! Granby is sure it's a wonderful thing; twenty-five gallons she pours into me, saying it cures all the humors of Spring. "Sassafras tea is a snare and a delusion," so all the eminent scientists say; "never will it banish a pain or an ache, it is as vain as a broom made of hay." Granby knows better; she's old and she's wise, she has seen mortals both come and depart; all of the lore of the world is in her eyes, all of its kindness is stored in her heart. Granby has seen the long march of the years, years which have scattered the snow on her head; granby has known much of laughter and tears; granby has closed the dim-eyes of the dead. What do I care what the scientists say? Granby is ancient and wondrously wise; granby is brewing a potion today—tea before which every malady flies! Here's to old granby, her hope and her pills! So I shall swallow, with evident awe, whether it cures me or whether it kills, twenty-five gallons of sassafras tea.

Everyday Mind Reading

By RUTH CAMERON.

Did you ever happen to interest yourself in the science of mind reading?
I don't mean the abstract science which we read about in books, but the simple, concrete kind, which you and I can practice every day if we have our wits about us.

For instance, a young engaged couple who have been absent from each other for some months come together again, and after the customary greetings have somewhat subsided, she asks him, "Do you ever wonder if I'll look the way you think I do, when you see me again?" "No," he answers, "but you do, or else you wouldn't have asked me that." In which conclusion he was quite correct, and showed that he understood the everyday science of mind reading to a T.

Suppose you are with a group of girls, and one of them looks at you thoughtfully and then observes, "Does my nose look shiny?" do you thoughtlessly say "No," or "Yes," as the case may be, and let it go at that? Or do you read the thought that made her ask the question, and reach for your own powder puff?

Again, our judgments of other people's motives and characters are often excellent insights on our own inward workings to him who has the wit to look for them. "He says he gets $50 a week," a man said to me the other day, speaking of a fellow employee, "but they all four-flush about their salaries. I usually deduct about 25 per cent from what they say. He probably gets $35 or $40 at the most."

Where did that man get such an idea of his friends? Partly from his experience with them, but partly out of his own knowledge of himself. I assure it would be safe to apply this 25 per cent rule to any statements which he should make.
"The man who is always suspicious of other men's honesty proves that he has many dishonest thoughts himself. The woman who is always ready to believe the worst of other women therein admits her consciousness of her own inherent weakness, however virtuous the shelter of circumstances and environment may have made her."

Another interesting branch of mind reading consists in tracing trains of thought. You notice a child with an exquisite complexion and mention the fact. A moment later your companion says, "I wonder how Mrs. So-and-So is. Have you heard from her lately?" If he had said, "Speaking of complexion, how is Mrs. So-and-So who has such a bad pimple on her nose?" you would be sure to believe that is an exaggerated example of the kind of mind reading. Much more intricate and lengthy trails can be followed by any one who is accustomed to the exercise. I want, however, to warn any one who tries this not to be too sure of his conclusions. I have frequently put mine to the test of inquiry, and while they were often right, they were sometimes totally wrong.

Doubtless you are already a mind reader. If you are not, I recommend the gentle art to you as a diversion and a tool. I think you'll find it both.

Solution of Social

Evil Question Lies in Public Education

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 29.—In an address on "The Social Evil," before the brotherhood of the German Evangelical Zion's church, Dr. Carl G. Winter opposed any plan to eliminate the social evil by the closing of immoral houses. He declared the solution of the social evil question lay in public education as to the dangers that arise from the evil, to the adoption of a code of morals that held men equally guilty with women and to the passage of laws protecting girls so that the commercial aspect of the social evil would be largely removed.

Dr. Winter said closing the immoral houses of the city by a certain date would merely mean the scattering of the evil, and not the elimination of the evil itself. He said it would result in a wider spread of immorality. Among other things Dr. Winter pointed to the rapid advancement in the elimination of the social evil in Germany and small towns and said through education the disease peculiar to the social evil might also in time be wiped out.

In discussing past efforts to solve the question, Dr. Winter said such efforts had been largely a moral crusade in which only the women were prosecuted, while the men, who are equally guilty, had escaped punishment. Police regulation, he said, had resulted in a virtual license for the inmates and wherever employed had usually resulted in blackmail by the police.

As a solution for the social evil, Dr. Winter suggested that parents teach their children the dangers of the evil at an early age; that laws be passed more strongly regulating child labor; providing for the closest safeguards in connection with the intermingling of boys and girls under the age of 18; raising the age of consent to 18; providing equal wages for men and women and a minimum wage and placing men under the fear of prison sentence for violation of the moral laws.

Because of the importance of such laws to women, Dr. Winter suggested that women have the right to suffrage in order that they might vote on the question of enacting such laws.

Dr. Winter says the women who propose to undertake the solution of the social evil in Indianapolis should conduct their work along the line of public education and not by proposing to close the immoral houses. He said the closing of immoral houses could not be accomplished in a few months, but that by a proper educational campaign they would close because of such a campaign within a few years.

Surgeon Directs Delicate Operation by Wireless

NEW ORLEANS, April 29.—How a laborer on Swan island, a lonely wireless station in the gulf, suffered a crushed foot; how the wireless operator on the island communicated with a ship 320 miles away, raised the surgeon, and got him, to explain the proper way to amputate; then how the operator's assistant performed the operation is a story told by the manager of a big shipping firm today.
New Orleans physicians described it as surgery by wireless. On Swan island is a wireless station, one of the links in the chain to the tropics. When a laborer's foot was hurt in a train car accident the wireless operator there, the score was an imperative. The score was no medical books at hand and no one at the station ever had hacked at a fellow being. Then the operator had an inspiration. He called a fellow craftsman on a ship passing 320 miles below into the Caribbean sea.

The situation was explained to the ship's surgeon and detail by detail he explained just how the amputation should be handled. After the arteries had been tied and the wound dressed the patient recovered his senses and insisted on pressing at the wireless key to express his thanks. At last accounts he was getting well.

Girl, Locked Out of Home by Relatives, Disappears

DENVER, April 29.—Rhoda Miller, 18 years old and pretty, was locked out of her home at 1237 Marion street, Saturday night, by her mother and an aunt, who, she declares, are trying to force her to part from the man she loves. The girl disappeared later in the evening and has not been seen or heard of since.
The girl, according to the story she told Captain Carter after two policemen had been sent to the house on Marion street because of the quarrel, says that her aunt is endeavoring to induce her mother to force the girl to give up her sweetheart for Charles Lee, a cabinet maker, employed at the Western Furniture company at 1122 Seventh avenue.

Saturday night, according to the story told by the girl and Lee, they wanted to go to the theater. The aunt refused to allow the girl to leave the house, because, she says, the girl's mother was ill. A quarrel followed and a call was sent to the police station.

Before the policemen arrived, Lee and his sweetheart left the house. After the theater they went to the police station and reported the matter to Captain Carter. The girl wanted her mother arrested and also her aunt. The girl told the police that her aunt was trying to have her mother disinherited. She says that there is considerable money involved. The officer was stationed at the house until a late hour Saturday night, waiting for the couple to return. After they left the police station they have not been seen by the girl's relatives. The girl is the daughter of Mrs. Anna Miller. Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Miller told the police that the girl had not been home since she left Saturday night and asked the police to locate her.

FORMER SALIDA WOMAN DIES

SALIDA, Colo., April 29.—Mrs. Margaret Delo, aged 78, a resident of this city for 17 years, died at the home of her daughter in Tacoma, Wash., yesterday. Mrs. Delo came to Colorado from Greenville, Ohio, with her husband, who died 16 years ago. She lived with her son, A. G. Delo, a Rio Grande conductor, until two years ago, when she went to Tacoma.

FIRST AID TO INJURED HEARTS

By Laura Jean Libbey

The Women They Love

(Copyright 1912, by Laura Jean Libbey.)

Human nature is a strange combination of doubting and trusting. Men of the strongest wills make resolutions which they are pleased to break. Such men might have a happy enough life of it, living out their existence as they had scheduled it, were it not that their decisions in all things. No matter how hard and grinding men are to the people whom they meet in the outside world, they are entirely different beings to the women they love. They lavish all they have upon them without a murmur, their happiness and comfort being first, last, and everything to them.

It has been said that men who have gone upon the downward course will never change after marriage. I take issue with this opinion, and hold that men can and will reform through the influence of the women whom they love. There comes a time in every man's life, when he loves some one. If he does not care enough for her to marry her she has but slight hold upon him when the real affection enters his life. She may be just the opposite from the woman he thought he fancied for years and with whom he had wasted so much fruitless time.

Soon or late there is an end to every road except to that which leads along the path of the true love which makes its seat in reason and is judicious. It takes a man who is stubborn in his convictions a long time to wake up to a new truth. He puts the knowledge from him as long as he can. But when he looks into the eyes of the woman who is more to him than all the world besides, all the fallacies of the past are swept aside. He begins the future bravely, with thoughts only of the woman whom he loves. The one great fear in his heart is that she may grow weary of him.

The woman whom a man loves is the power behind the throne. Her influence dictates every move in his life. Whether it is for business or for pleasure. He makes her friends his friends; drops friends of a lifetime if she does not find them congenial. The woman whom he loves may be truly said to be the guiding star of his existence. She alone can write upon the pages of his life books which he would like to refuse her nothing. No wonder that love is conceded to be the world's greatest power.

ANSWERS

DOESN'T WANT TO BE A HERMIT.
"Dear Miss Libbey: I am much in love with and engaged to a young lady who is teaching school many miles away from me. She insists on running around with another young man. She sometimes says she does not care as much for me as she would like to. I know she really loves me but do not know how to tell her that she should not go with this other gentleman. She is a long ways from here and in a strange town. I told her I did not want her to be a hermit, but every time I mention this she takes offense."

How can I make her understand my feelings without offending her, and do you think an engaged girl should go around with other young men? J. B.

Why not write and tell her that you are not keeping company with any girl and that you prefer she do not go out with other men?

ISN'T SHE BOSSY?
"Dear Miss Libbey: Please give me your candid opinion of a young man who is keeping company with a young lady of another social circle, but tries to keep it a secret from me. He has enjoyed several evenings at my home with a crowd of young people and at every opportunity speaks of the good time he had. As soon as I learned of his other young lady friend I backed down. He is very proud of himself and likes to be popular among the girls. I have known him for years and always liked him until I learned of his selfishness. Did I do right? He is just worth a second thought? DOTTY D."

Unless you are engaged to the young man you have no right to interfere or make suggestions in regard to his friends. If you do not like the kind of people he associates with don't go about with him.

HE'S A BALLOONIST.
"Dear Miss Libbey: I am in love with a man of 18 and he is deeply in love with me. He has black curly hair and rather dark complexion. He won't give up his occupation. He is a balloonist. I tell him that he will get killed some day. He has no other occupation. He has already proposed to me. HELEN."

I should think his profession would keep you both up in the air. What's something less dangerous he might engage in?

IF LUCK AND FATE FAVOR.
"Dear Miss Libbey: A few months ago I became engaged to one of the nicest young ladies existing. Before my engagement I explained my situation to her, stating that it will be some time before I will be able to marry her. She, understanding fully my situation, consented to become my wife. I am 24 years of age and she is a few years my junior. "It will be a few months, perhaps a year, before I will be able to marry her. In your opinion am I doing my sweetheart injustice in keeping her waiting so long. Of course we love in the strictest meaning of the word. There is no other reason for the delay than lack of funds. "I am a student and do not earn enough to take proper care of myself. But if luck and fate favor me within 10 months or so I will be able to earn enough to support us both properly. Kindly advise me what is the proper modus operandi in my case. I am willing to do anything to please my sweetheart. "CONSTANT IN LOVE."

Personally I am opposed to long engagements, but if the girl is willing to wait and loves you I don't see that you would be doing any injustice.

Spring Showers Have Begun

The dampness breeds all kinds of pests—roaches, bedbugs, beetles. All of them vanish when Petermann's Discovery is used. This remedy exterminates all such insects and in a perfectly non-offensive manner.

Use it freely and these pesky pests will pester you no more.

Those Cheyenne Mountain Lots

Several people have bought lots during the cut price sale. Several others have signified a desire to purchase; all such will be given till April 25 to select at the cut price, $125 for $250 lots. Until $1,000 worth of lots are sold, $250 lots will be sold for $150; $500 lots for $225 and $350 lots for $275, after which no lots will be sold for less than schedule prices. You cannot make an investment of a small amount more likely to increase in value in a few months, as the number of lots cannot increase while the demand for them is increasing.

REMEMBER, WATER PIPED TO EVERY LOT.
